The Lodge at Kinloch's Raising the Bar programmes are designed to help build individual confidence and greater team spirit. Or should that be spirits? Spirits such as whisky and vodka, in fact – the perfect incentive for two, a residential retreat for up to 40 delegates or a sit-down dinner for 375 guests.

Professionals are there to guide teams through tutored tastings that reveal the difference between single and blended whiskies, how different waters affect vodka and explore the noble grape varieties that enshrine champagne as the world's top celebratory choice. Guests can learn a mixologist's tricks to create memorable cocktails or even bond over the finer points of being a sommelier and how best to judge and smoke cigars.

There are day and 24-hour packages. The Premium 24-hour Delegates Package includes accommodation in a Junior Suite, one or two-bedroom villa, pre-dinner drinks and canapés, five-course degustation dinner and gourmet breakfast, morning and afternoon tea, private meeting spaces and conference room hire with water, stationery and high-speed Wi-Fi, light working lunch and choice of onsite and offsite activities.

These might include hiking the Tongariro Alpine Crossing, golf workshops with the Kinloch Club pro, guided mountain-bike expeditions, a tennis tournament or a wellbeing session at Kinloch's Prescriptive Organics Spa.

And then, of course, there's the Kinloch Club's spectacular Jack Nicklaus Signature golf course, twice voted New Zealand's top layout, which may tempt delegates to linger on – for strictly professional reasons, of course... ▣
